Riley Sleichter (Abilene, Kansas)

Agricultural Economics | Kansas State University

While learning within animal sciences and business fields, it does not feel like “work” to me; I truly enjoy my curriculum. This idea of finding a career that I truly love proves itself as my top career goal, and I am already searching employers to find “the one” for me. To coincide with the enjoyment of my curriculum, my educational goals help guide me along. I plan to graduate from Kansas State University with honors and yearn to begin my career on a firm financial foundation by financing college through my cow herd and scholarships.

Adriene Aubuchon (Owensville, Missouri)

Agricultural Studies | University of Missouri

Upon my graduation from the University of Missouri, I would like to continue my education and obtain a master's degree in agricultural communications or plant sciences. I am dedicated to being a forever learner, and continuing my education is something that is very important to me. I would then like to work for a plant-based commodity group and work with communication, education, and outreach. My main goal is to communicate the important story of agriculture to all. Then, I have the dream of opening my own florist shop and being a business owner.

Macy Evans (Creston, Iowa)

Agricultural Education | Iowa State University

As a student at Iowa State University, I have the goal to take advantage of every opportunity. I want to study abroad at least two more times, join 2 random clubs and push for excellence within my academics. I have the goal to graduate ISU with a cumulative GPA over 3.5. However, more than that I hope to find more of my passion and become more confident in my area of study before I enter the real world!
