C.B. "STUBB" STUBBLEFIELD

Pitmaster, Chef, Business/Industry, Restaurateur

C.B. Stubblefield is the creator and founder of Stubb's Legendary Bar-B-Q Sauce as well as the famous restaurant "Stubb's" originally opened in Lubbock, Texas and now situated in Austin. He was a pitmaster, a business leader, and a chef of everything barbecue.

C.B. Stubblefield, known as "Stubb" got his first chance to cook for the masses as a mess sergeant in the last all-black regiment of the Korean War in the U.S. Army, transforming his mess hall into the first incarnation of Stubb's Bar-B-Q restaurant. After his tours of duty in Korea, Stubb moved to Lubbock, Texas where, in 1968, he christened Stubb's Legendary Bar-B-Q. It was here where he was urged by friends and patrons to sell his signature sauce. So using old whiskey bottles and jam jars, Stubb began hand-bottling his sauce for sale, corking each makeshift container with a jalapeño.

Today, Stubb's heritage lives on in his renowned sauces, marinades and rubs, continuing to make people feel good all over the world.
