The American Royal Saddle Horse Show is proud to be the oldest continuous Saddlebred show in the world. The show began in 1894 through the collaboration of an unlikely pair: Tom Bass, the legendary African American horse trainer, born into slavery but rising to become one of the most famous horsemen of his time, and Arthur Stilwell, a civic leader and the founder of the Kansas City Southern Railroad. The horse show was first held at Fairmont Park in Independence before moving to the Convention Hall in Kansas City. At the turn of the century, the Saddle Horse show became part of the newly created American Royal Livestock and Horse Show. These early shows were glittering affairs indeed: standing-room only crowds of 8,000 spectators were thrilled by the sight of Tom Bass riding Miss Rex and Belle Beach. Miss Loula Long, a beloved local heiress whose farm in Lee's Summit, Missouri, is now the treasured Longview Horse Park, dominated the Ladies classes in the early decades of the twentieth century. When she drove into the ring wearing a spectacular hat with her dogs at her side, she was sure to receive a standing ovation.

Early American Royal Livestock and Horse shows were an exciting mix of breeds, disciplines, entertainment and agricultural enterprise. An American Royal schedule from Friday, November 19, 1926, for example, shows classes judging Belgian Horses, Shire Horses, Shorthorn Cattle, and Hereford Cattle running through the morning; a Horse and Mule Pulling Contest in the afternoon; and the Horse Show, running through the evening, included "Roadsters, Harness Horses, Three and Five-Gaited Saddle Horses, Hunters and Jumpers, Shetland Ponies, Hackney Horses, Six-Horse Teams" and a "Spectacular Artillery Drill and Special Band Music" concluding the evening. (A dog show also ran throughout the day and night.) On the last Saturday night of the season, the city dressed up and crowded into the arena to watch the Champions of the Horse Show crowned.

The traditions continue to this day. The American Royal Livestock and Horse Show has seen many good years and become a proud Kansas City tradition. But even a bad year at the Royal produces lore and legends. In 1940, for example, R.W. Morrison, the owner of Anacacho Ranch in Spotford, Texas, had a disastrous show at the American Royal. His promising stallion, Anacacho Shamrock, came in fifth in the championship, and Morrison immediately sold the horse and announced that he was getting out of the horse business. In fact, he sold Anacacho Shamrock to someone who had been trying to buy him for a while: Frances Dodge, an avid Saddlebred enthusiast and the heiress to the Dodge automobile fortune. Back at Dodge Stables, Anacacho Shamrock was bred to Flirtation Walk to produce Wing Commander, one of our breed's most important stallions and the first celebrity Saddlebred, renowned for his performances in the ring. In 1951, Saddle and Bridle described Wing Commander as "the greatest performing five-gaited horse in the history of the breed and the most successful five-gaited champion of all time." And it all started with a bad year at the Royal.

Today this 123-year-old horse show has grown into six horse shows. The Youth Horse Show brings Missouri and Kansas kids together to compete in Horsemanship, Equitation, Showmanship and Pleasure Riding. The Arabian Horse Show shows off the versatility of the breed in "classes ranging from Western, English and Hunt Seat equitation and pleasure, to jumping and driving. The Quarter Horse Show attracts the country's best Quarter Horses to Kansas City to compete in halter and performance classes. The Hunter/Jumper Show offers 5 days of competition, culminating in the Roy A. Edwards, Jr. Memorial Grand Prix, an Olympic-caliber event where the best horses and riders from around the country vie for the $25,000 prize money. The Cutting Horse Show offers spectators the drama and excitement of one of the fastest growing sports in the country.

Of course we save the best for last: the UPHA American Royal National Championship Horse Show, considered the third leg of the American Saddlebred triple crown, is the grand finale of the American Royal season each year and the last show of the national Saddlebred season as well. An historic partnership between the UPHA and the American Royal in 2002 has produced remarkable growth and excitement for this show, bringing new participants, fans and the best horses and riders to Kansas City.

The American Royal Association has grown as well, and today features a barbecue contest, rodeos and livestock auctions. But at the heart of the American Royal is the horse, and, of course, the horse show, its longest standing tradition. By competing here in Kansas City, you give our community the chance to watch the very best horses and competitors from around the country perform at the highest levels of their various disciplines. You keep the history and traditions of the American Royal alive and thriving.

ARTIST OF THE AMERICAN ROYAL

Carol Friel

Born in Kansas City and living in this area for most of her life, Carol Friel fell in love with horses and art at a very young age. For part of her early childhood years she lived on St. Simons Island, Georgia. There she recalls frequent trips to a wonderful art store for supplies and walks on the beach where she'd see beautiful Saddlebreds being exercised near the water. She would sit and watch the horses with her parents, and perhaps in those moments lie the beginnings of a career devoted to drawing and painting horses. When Carol was nine years old, the family moved back to Kansas City, and she got her own horse. It was a Saddlebred, and she's been involved with the breed ever since. She enjoys showing them and currently has a Park horse and a three-year-old in training with Greg Haston of Touchstone Farm.

After graduating from high school, Carol attended William Jewell College where she majored in Art with minors in Biology and Psychology. Hallmark Cards hired her after graduation from college, and she worked as an artist for Hallmark for four years and as a section manager of an art department for another seven years. When her children were born, Carol freelanced for Hallmark for another ten years in various departments. She now works on her own doing commissioned artwork for people throughout the United States.

Many of her projects are horse-related, and the American Royal has certainly benefited from her talent and her generosity. Carol painted the banners that hang in the Exhibitor's Lounge during the week of the UPHA American Royal National Championship. In 2008 she was commissioned to design a signature trophy for the UPHA American Royal championship classes. Her pieces of pottery, each hand-painted and lettered, are like no other horse show trophy in the country and hearken back to traditional slipware pieces of an early age. With the assistance of potter Calvin Bennett of Lee's Summit, Missouri, she has continued to create unique commemorative trophies for the UPHA American Royal National Championship.
